A University of London degree from anywhere in the world

Dr Stefano Harney
Programme Director
Royal Holloway

Welcome to the BSc Marketing. You will be gaining a permanent competitive advantage by undertaking this degree.

Our programme goes well beyond standard marketing degrees and the additional knowledge and insight you will gain from our programme will provide you with the kind of value-adding analytic skills that are so highly sought in the world of marketing, advertising and corporate communication today.

Our enhanced BSc Marketing provides you with a wider perspective on the role of marketing in society, of the rise of the customer and the impact of consumption today globally. We give you the historical and sociological imagination that allows you to see the trends and tipping points in marketing that others might be missing.

Ours is a global curriculum because marketing is a global enterprise. We study the differences and commonalities obtained in markets and marketing around the world giving you the vital intelligence to operate across borders, with confidence and respect that comes with specific local and regional knowledge. We will introduce you to cultural and social aspects of markets and marketing that go beyond the generic models and advice of standard marketing textbooks. Instead we equip you with a broader and deeper knowledge of the relationship between marketing, development and colonialism. We introduce you to the postcolonial realities of marketing. And we help you make the connections between marketing and the underlying fundamentals of politics, economics and society shift that determine the rules for how marketing operates.

This degree also stands out for its commitment to ethics, sustainability and diversity at a time when a mastery of these matters is not only an asset, but also a basic requirement for any high level position in the industry (and beyond). Our approach to these central concerns of our time is not to add them on to marketing’s core concerns and practices but to recognize that these matters must be at the heart of how marketing conducts its business. Our modules therefore integrate ethical questions throughout the curriculum. Every module considers sustainability the criteria of success or failure in any marketing endeavour. And we invest in the power of diversity not only to help you root out from marketing practice any lingering lack of equity but also to showcase the range of talent available when diversity steps to the centre of an organisation.

We pay special attention to the ways marketing practices must keep up and demonstrate commitment in the face of evolving articulation of gender, race, ability and sexuality among communities and customers. In short this is a programme like no other that will have you standing out from the crowd.
A trusted name in global education

The University of London is one of the world’s leading universities, internationally recognised for its high academic standards. This reputation is based on the outstanding teaching and research of our 17 member institutions.

Upon finishing a programme of study, graduates automatically become part of the University of London alumni community, a diverse global network of more than one million graduates. Among former students are six Nobel Prize winners, including Nelson Mandela and Charles Kao, a pioneer in the development of fibre-optics.

London made global

Founded in 1836, the University of London is one of the oldest and most prestigious universities in the UK and is internationally regarded as a centre of academic excellence. In 1858, we made our degrees available to study anywhere in the world.

Today, we have more than 48,000 students in over 190 countries, studying on 100-plus degrees, diplomas and certificates.

Learn from internationally renowned experts

The programme is led by academics at Royal Holloway’s School of Business and Management. Royal Holloway is in the top 25 per cent of UK universities for research rated ‘world-leading’ or ‘internationally excellent’ (REF 2014).

As one of the UK’s leading research-intensive universities Royal Holloway is home to some of the world’s foremost authorities in the sciences, arts, business, economics and law.
Build an understanding of marketing theory and practice

The BSc Marketing degree provides a foundation for advanced and independent study through establishing a common platform of essential knowledge and skills.

A range of themes are offered to ensure that students appreciate the diverse, interdisciplinary nature of business administration and marketing and also gain or reinforce a range of conceptual, technical, quantitative and personal skills.

The degree structure is progressive, allowing students to move from general modules to more critical or specialist modules. Students will gain the ability to analyse real-life problems facing actual businesses and evaluate the effectiveness and limitations of different marketing and management solutions and practices.

As a graduate of this programme, you will:

• gain an understanding of the organisation, its functions and the context of business leading to a multifaceted appreciation of marketing and other management disciplines
• gain an understanding of contemporary perspectives on marketing as a discipline and its implications for firms, industries and society
• learn the strategic and operational facets of marketing set within the context of globalisation and its implications for the marketing manager and consumerism
• gain the ability to analyse real-life problems facing actual businesses and evaluate the effectiveness and limitations of different marketing and management decisions and solutions.

In some countries, qualifications earned by distance and flexible learning may not be recognised by certain authorities or regulators for the purposes of public sector employment or further study. We advise you to explore the local recognition status before you register, even if you plan to receive support from a local teaching institution.
Collaboration with Coursera

An academic first

We are extremely proud to have been the first university to partner with Coursera when it embarked on its first Bachelor’s degree back in 2017. The University of London has more than 45 courses on the Coursera platform, generating over 2.8 million Coursera learner enrollments. Coursera has over 77 million registered learners spread over more than 4,600 courses and more than 500 specialisations. They’ve partnered with some of the world’s leading universities, which include Johns Hopkins University, Stanford, University of Michigan, The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, and Shanghai Jiao Tong. Coursera’s courses are used by leading brands, including over 25 per cent of Fortune 500 companies, to train and update their staff. You can read more about Coursera at: about.coursera.org

US-imposed restrictions

United States export control regulations prevent Coursera from offering services and content to users in certain countries or regions. More information about which countries or regions are affected can be found at: bit.ly/intl-restrictions

Coursera must enforce this restriction in order to remain in compliance with US law and, for that reason, we advise that all learners check this information before applying to the programme.

Welcome from Betty Vandenbosch, CCO

We’re honoured that the University of London is launching a second job-relevant degree on Coursera – enabling learners from around the world to access an affordable education from a top 25 UK university. The Bachelor of Science in Marketing from Royal Holloway, University of London will equip students with the latest knowledge, techniques and practices used in modern-day marketing. Internationally renowned experts will also help build a strong foundation of core marketing skills such as strategy, international business, marketing theory and consumer behaviour. Students can study at their own pace from virtually anywhere – while participating in engaging learning experiences, such as online tutorials and debates with peers from around the globe. To set students up for success, they can try a course before applying.

Degrees continue to be one of the most valued credentials in the job market, and we’re excited to build on the global success of the University of London’s Bachelor of Science in Computer Science by launching this new programme in a high-demand field.

About Coursera

Coursera was founded by Daphne Koller and Andrew Ng with a vision of providing life-transforming learning experiences to anyone, anywhere. It is now a leading online learning platform for higher education, where more than 77 million learners from around the world come to learn skills of the future.
How you study

The programme offers a variety of highly engaging learning materials and activities. Your learning experience will be enhanced with an accessible and attractive virtual learning platform offering opportunities for self-assessment so you can understand your own progress.

A range of established knowledge and skills development approaches are used to encourage learning: pre-recorded videos, readings, guided learning activities, formative assessments including multiple-choice quizzes and live tutorials.

Each 30-credit module comprises weekly topics, corresponding to the key content items detailed in the module descriptors, and equating to approximately 10–12 hours of directed learning per week.

Programme structure

BSc Marketing

- Four Stage 1 modules (FHEQ Level 4)
- Four Stage 2 modules (FHEQ Level 5)
- Four Stage 3 modules (FHEQ Level 6), including a choice of one module.

Although you cannot choose to register for CertHE or DipHE awards on the programme, CertHE or DipHE Business Administration are available as exit qualifications for students who find themselves unable to complete the BSc.
Online support

Our flexible online programme allows you to work around your own schedule and leads to a globally-recognised qualification. The programme is delivered online and there is no requirement to come to the UK as part of your studies.

When you register, we will give you access to the Student Portal. You can then access your University of London email account and other key resources including:

- The Student Guide which provides information common to all students and gives useful information about your relationship with the University of London through to graduation.
- The Virtual Learning Environment (VLE) which provides access to:
  - the online Reach Out Forum and discussion areas which allow students to communicate with each other
  - sample examination questions and formative multiple choice questions to aid revision
  - online tutorial webinars, held by tutors who provide support and guidance throughout each study session.
- The Online Library provides access to over 100 million academic electronic items comprising ebooks, ejournals, conference proceedings etc.

In addition, students can request items which are not held in the library via the Online Library’s Inter-Library Loan service with the British Library. All registered students have free access to the University of London’s Online Library via onlinelibrary.london.ac.uk

- Senate House Library provides free reference access for all registered distance and flexible learning students.

Study materials

All essential resources, activities, videos, discussions and support are provided through the VLE. This allows you to fit your studies around your work commitments.

Assessment

The format and mode of assessment for these programmes may change due to events or circumstances beyond our control. Students will be informed of their assessment arrangements via their VLE, once confirmed. For the latest information on examinations, please visit: london.ac.uk/exams

Time commitment

The flexible approach to learning allows students to complete the BSc Marketing in a minimum of three years (subject to module availability) to a maximum of six years.

You can study at your own pace, either part time or full time, adjusting the intensity of learning to suit your needs.
Entrance requirements
To register for the BSc Marketing, you will normally need to satisfy our general entry requirements.

The University of London welcomes qualifications from across the world, which are equivalent to UK GCSEs and A levels. For further information visit: london.ac.uk/bsc-marketing

This degree is open to those with non-traditional qualifications via our performance-based route. This route also welcomes applications from those with relevant work experience but no formal qualifications.

If you successfully complete one specified Level 4 module, you can automatically progress with the credit obtained onto the full BSc degree. Further details are available at: london.ac.uk/bsc-marketing

English language requirements
You must satisfy the English language requirements for the programme. For more information on the requirements please visit: bit.ly/english-reqs

If you do not meet the English language proficiency requirements but believe that you can demonstrate the requisite proficiency, the University may, at its discretion, consider your application.

Computer requirements
The University of London sets minimum basic computer requirements because your study resources are accessed via the Student Portal.
