

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

2021

Postgraduate programmes in

Organizational Psychology and Human Resource Management

With academic direction from:

london.ac.uk/ophrm

World class. Worldwide.

Join the World Class

1 A mark of excellence

Gain a University of London degree and increase your potential career development.

2 Quality of learning

The programmes in this leaflet are developed by academics in the Department of Organizational Psychology at Birkbeck, the oldest and largest department of its kind in the UK, so you can rely on the quality of the degree content.

3 Worldwide relevance

The programmes are designed to be of worldwide relevance. Graduates have gone on to become careers advisors, managers and consultants in large multi-national companies and government departments.

4 Access a wealth of online resources

You are fully supported online and participate in tutor-led virtual seminars for each module. You are also assigned a personal tutor to provide general guidance throughout your studies.

5 Flexible learning

With no relocation or accommodation costs, studying online through the University of London is much more affordable than coming to London to study on campus. What's more, you can continue working full time.

An aerial photograph of The Shard, a tall, glass-clad skyscraper in London, standing prominently above the surrounding cityscape. The building's unique, tapering design is clearly visible. Below it, the dense urban fabric of London is spread out, with various buildings and streets. In the foreground, the River Thames flows, with a few boats and a bridge visible. The sky is a clear, pale blue with some light clouds. A semi-transparent purple box on the right side of the image contains text.

“In a fast changing environment of worldwide access to higher education, a University of London degree continues to offer a guarantee of quality, value and intellectual rigour.”

Professor Wendy Thomson
Vice-Chancellor,
University of London

Your prestigious University of London qualification

About your qualification

When you graduate with a degree from the University of London you will receive two important documents – your Final Diploma (the parchment you receive on graduation) and a Diploma Supplement.

The Final Diploma

- Indicates that you were registered with the University of London and awarded a University of London degree, diploma or certificate.
- Gives the name of the University of London member institution that developed the syllabus and provided assessment.
- Features the University of London crest and the Vice-Chancellor's signature.

The Diploma Supplement

- Describes the nature, level and content of the degree you successfully completed.
- Includes the transcript of all courses taken, marks achieved and overall classification.
- States the role of Birkbeck and the method of study.

Contents

Postgraduate programmes in Organizational Psychology and Human Resource Management

Join the World Class	2
Your prestigious University of London qualification	4
Outstanding distance learning opportunities	6
Organizational Psychology	8
Human Resource Management	9
Why study with us?	10
How do I study?	12
Further information	14

Key dates

Application deadline:

5 April 2021

Registration deadline:

19 April 2021

Programme begins:

26 April 2021

Outstanding distance learning opportunities

Mark Stringer

Programme Director
Organizational Psychology and
Human Resource Management

Many people wish for a better understanding of the organization they work for. They know how to do their job, but would like a set of ideas and a way of thinking to help them understand and improve the way things are done organizationally. With such understanding, they may be more successful, and help to create more productive and satisfying workplaces for others. It is for people like this that our programmes in Organizational Psychology and Human Resource Management have been designed.

The programmes are concerned with the social and psychological processes operating in organizations, and how these processes relate to organizational systems and structures.

Both programmes use current and classic theory and research to enable you to understand organizations and to develop ways of improving them. Such improvements come in many forms, from selecting, training and motivating people, to maintaining and enhancing their well-being.

You will receive small group tuition by experts, extensive high quality and purpose-written study materials, and access to world-class library facilities. Because tuition takes place online, you can study at the times you choose, and do so anywhere in the world that internet access is available. You will also have the opportunity to interact with tutors and other students during the modules and in other learning forums.

Key objectives:

- Build extensive knowledge of a wide array of psychological theories that can be applied to work settings (in areas including motivation, selection and assessment, well-being, learning and development, organizational change and leadership).
- Critically evaluate peer-reviewed research that has examined individual, group and organizational level outcomes.
- Acquire a thorough grounding of research methods, ethics and statistics.
- Undertake an applied qualitative or quantitative research dissertation under the guidance of a supervisor who specialises in your chosen methodology.

Academic direction: Birkbeck

The Department of Organizational Psychology is the oldest and largest of its kind in the UK and makes a major contribution to research in the field of behaviour at work. It is a major provider of academic and professional training in organizational psychology (also known as occupational psychology or organizational behaviour) coaching, career management and HRM studies.

As well as providing established and innovative teaching programmes, members of the department are dedicated to conducting internationally renowned research in their specialist fields, and have papers published worldwide in top academic journals.

The authors of the study materials you will receive are all highly respected in the field. The department maintains good relationships with industrial research partners.

BPS Accreditation

The British Psychological Society (BPS) is the representative body for psychology and psychologists in the UK and is responsible for the promotion of excellence and ethical practice in the science, education and practical applications of the discipline.

This MSc has been accredited by the BPS as part of the Stage 1 requirements. If you want to apply to become a registered practitioner psychologist with the Health Care and Professions Council and become eligible for Chartered Status with the society, this MSc forms one part of Stage 1 and the route to Graduate membership.

To proceed to Stage 2 of accreditation, you must fulfil all the requirements for the Graduate Basis for Chartered (GBC) Membership of the BPS.

To join as a Graduate Member, you'll need to have achieved at least a 2:2 in an undergraduate psychology degree accredited by the society, or to have completed an accredited conversion course.

Details of how this accreditation fits within the overall BPS Chartered Qualification Framework route of Stages 1 and 2, is available on the BPS website. If you are unsure of your own eligibility or routes that may be available to you from the BPS, please take time to contact the BPS directly to clarify these.

Organizational Psychology

Heidi Driessen

MSc Organizational
Psychology, Cyprus

‘The flexibility of the programme suited my international way of life well, as I studied and sat exams in five different countries. It has enriched me in many ways, brought me new knowledge, insights and skills for academic work and enabled me to fulfill a long-cherished wish.’

MSc degree:

Eight compulsory modules plus the Research Project modules (Research Proposal and Dissertation).

Postgraduate Diploma:

Eight compulsory modules.

Please note: with the exception of the Research Project, all modules can be taken as individual modules. You can register for up to three modules at any one time. The anticipated number of study hours per module is 150 hours.

Structure

Compulsory modules:

Employee relations and motivation

Leadership and performance management

Learning and development

Life career development

Research methods

Selection and assessment

Understanding organizations and change

Work and well-being

Research Project (MSc only)

Human Resource Management

MSc degree:

Eight compulsory modules plus the Research Project modules (Research Proposal and Dissertation).

Postgraduate Diploma:

Eight compulsory modules.

Please note: with the exception of the Research Project, all modules can be taken as individual modules. You can register for up to three modules at any one time. The anticipated number of study hours per module is 150 hours.

Structure

Compulsory modules:

Comparative employment relations

Human resource strategies

International human resource management

Leadership and performance management

Leading and developing people

Professional development and learning

Research methods

Selection and assessment

Research Project (MSc only)

“The programme is hugely engaging, challenging and relevant to anyone wanting to have a more evidenced-based practice. The way that the programme is set up virtually with students from around the globe is hugely effective.

The blended online learning of watching lectures in London, communicating with a community of peers every week in forum discussions, coupled with a high quality of tutors both supporting and challenging your thinking is a powerful combination. Loved this experience.”

Cass Coulston

MSc Organizational Psychology, India

Why study with us?

The programmes listed in this leaflet give you the opportunity to gain professional recognition and progress your career in the direction you choose.

Our students come from a variety of backgrounds. Many are already working in HR or management and wish to advance their career with a qualification. Others are looking to make a career change, or simply want to understand organisations better.

Why distance learning?

There are many reasons to consider distance learning. Your job may involve extensive travel or long and irregular hours, making it difficult to commit to regular classes and study times. Perhaps you would rather avoid the expense of relocating to London as a full-time student. Whatever your reasons, the flexibility of these programmes allows you to plan your studies to fit in with your home and work commitments.

Employment routes

Graduates of these programmes go on to become trainers, motivators, careers advisors, managers and consultants within large multinational companies, government departments or in any organization where advanced knowledge of organizational psychology may be useful.

Flexible study

You can study for a full MSc, a Postgraduate Diploma or choose to take a single module for your continuing professional development. If you do not want to commit to studying an MSc, you can register for an individual module or Postgraduate Diploma first. Having successfully completed these, you can then move on to gain the full MSc.

You have between one and five years to complete the MSc or the Postgraduate Diploma.

Time commitment

The degree offers the flexibility to complete in one year, or up to five years depending on your desired study pace. For instance, you do not have to take examinations every year. As a rough guide, if you wish to complete in the minimum study period you should be prepared to study 25 hours per week during the academic session. The academic session runs from the beginning of October to the end of September.

Assessment

Each module is summatively assessed by a final assessment (worth 90 per cent of the overall mark), except for the Research Project modules (Research Proposal and Dissertation). The final assessment is typically a two-hour unseen written examination or a 3,000-word written report/essay.

For each module (except for the Research Project modules), you are required to make a minimum of two satisfactory contributions per discussion topic to the tutor supported computer conferencing. These contributions are worth 10 per cent of the overall module mark.

The Research Project modules are assessed by a 3,000 word research proposal and an 8,000-10,000 word dissertation respectively.

For full details on assessment please visit: london.ac.uk/regs

Continuing professional development (CPD)

Many professionals need to update their knowledge by focusing on a particular subject. As a result, our modules are also available on a stand-alone basis for the purposes of CPD (with the exception of the Research Project).

You can register for a maximum four modules without being registered for the MSc or Postgraduate Diploma, which can be studied simultaneously. On successful completion of each module you will receive a University of London certificate.

If you meet all the necessary entrance requirements you may later apply to register for the MSc and gain credits for the modules you have already passed.

How do I study?

The Virtual Learning Environment (VLE)

The dynamic element of the programme is provided through the VLE:

Recorded lectures and dedicated audio recordings

Audio recordings are made of lectures for postgraduate students at Birkbeck, and these recordings are provided to you along with the PowerPoint slides. In this way you can enjoy and benefit from Birkbeck lectures and lecture material wherever you are in the world, and at a time convenient to you.

Virtual seminars

You are placed into groups, the size of which depends on the number of students taking the module – but generally these are around 30 in number, with a highly qualified online conferencing tutor. For each module, you discuss topics in this conferencing group. As these discussions are not in 'real time', you can ask questions, give your opinions, request clarification and read contributions made by others at whatever time suits you.

If you are away from home, even on the other side of the world, it makes no difference as long as you have internet access when you need to conference.

At the end of the study period you can print this material off and read it whenever you want – giving you a permanent copy of all that you, your tutor, and your fellow students have written. Conferencing takes place over three terms.

Online discussions

Online discussions are an important part of the course, benefiting both you and your fellow students. You may find the prospect of joining in a discussion with people you have not met before slightly daunting, but once you have made one or two contributions you will probably feel more confident.

You are required to participate in the discussion, giving you an opportunity to explore the subject with your fellow students over the module itself.

Online Library resources

You have online access to the University's world-class library resources. Here you can search for and obtain articles in the world's top academic journals (including those recommended by your tutor), read them on your computer or print them out at work or home.

With a portable device such as an iPhone or iPad and access to the internet, you can conference and read articles anywhere and at any time!

Your study resources

For each module you study, you receive the following online resources:

- a live online session per module where the students meet with the tutor to discuss, in real time, the material and explore it in more depth. There are two sessions to cover time zones
- a dedicated virtual learning module area capturing all relevant learning and study materials
- textbooks for certain modules (either hard copy or electronic versions)
- recorded lectures or dedicated audio recordings, with associated PowerPoint slides
- links to recommended journal articles in the Online Library.

All study materials (articles and/or set texts) are included in the programme fee, with the exception of materials required to carry out the Research Project.

Online study support

Online teaching

At times of your own choosing you participate in tutor-led virtual seminars for each module.

Personal tutor

You are assigned a personal tutor who you can contact for general guidance over the course of your studies.

Programme administrator

Your first point of contact for all queries relating to your studies.

Student forums

An informal virtual meeting place where students support and encourage one another – a very popular feature of our programmes.

Further information

Entrance requirements

Academic

You will need either a bachelor's degree which is considered at least comparable to a UK second-class honours degree from an institution acceptable to the University or relevant education and work experience that comprises suitable training for the programme.

If you have an unconventional career path with diverse work experience and have completed 'The Manager's Toolkit: A Practical Guide to Managing People at Work' MOOC, we will consider your application on its own merits.

English language

For all applicants an advanced level of English is required. Applicants may be required to pass, or to have passed within the last three years, at the appropriate level, a test of proficiency in English acceptable to the University of London (e.g. TOEFL, IELTS, GCSE/GCE O level in English).

Computer

All students need a computer, regular access to the internet and a printer.

How to apply

For further information on this programme, entrance requirements and details on how to apply, please visit: london.ac.uk/ophrm

Fees

The total fee payable to the University of London for 2021–2022 will be published on our website once confirmed. On average, fees incur a five per cent year-on-year increase. For the latest information on programme fees, please visit: london.ac.uk/fees

Please note: student fees shown on our website are net of any local VAT,

Goods and Services Tax (GST) or any other sales tax payable by the student in their country of residence. Where the University is required to add VAT, GST or any other sales tax at the local statutory rate, this will be added to the fees shown during the payment process. For students resident in the UK, our fees are exempt from VAT.

Spreading the cost

You are not expected to pay in full as soon as you start your first module, unless you choose to do so. Generally, students choose the pay-as-you-go option, spreading the cost by paying for each new module in turn. But it is up to you.

The information contained in this prospectus was correct at the date of publication but may be subject to change. The University does not intend by publication or distribution of this prospectus to create any contractual or other legal relation with applicants, registered students, their advisers or any other persons. For the most up-to-date information, please visit our website.

Published by University of London.

Copyright © University of London, January 2021.

For further information on the range of programmes we offer, please visit our website (london.ac.uk) or contact us at:

The Student Advice Centre

University of London
Senate House, Malet Street
London WC1E 7HU
United Kingdom

Telephone enquires: +44 (0)20 7862 8360

Online enquiries: sid.london.ac.uk

View the OPHRM
web page

This material is available in alternative formats upon request.
Please contact: special.arrangements@london.ac.uk

Follow us on:

london.ac.uk/facebook

london.ac.uk/flickr

london.ac.uk/instagram

london.ac.uk/issuu

london.ac.uk/linkedin

london.ac.uk/twitter

london.ac.uk/youtube

london.ac.uk/ophrm