Important information regarding the Programme Regulations

Last revised 13 February 2018

As a student registered with the University of London, you are governed by the current General Regulations and Programme Regulations associated with your programme of study.

These Programme Regulations are designed and developed by UCL Institute of Education which is responsible for the academic direction of the programme. The regulations take account of any associated arrangements at UCL Institute of Education. Programme Regulations, together with the Programme Handbook, will provide the detailed rules and guidance for your programme of study.

In addition to Programme Regulations, you will have to abide by the General Regulations. These regulations apply to all students registered for a programme of study with the University of London and provide the rules governing registration and assessment on all programmes; they also indicate what you may expect on completion of your programme of study and how you may pursue a complaint, should that be necessary. Programme Regulations should be read in conjunction with the General Regulations.

The relevant General Regulations and the Programme Regulations relating to your registration with us are for the current year and not in the year in which you initially registered.

On all matters where the regulations are to be interpreted, or are silent, our decision will be final.

Further information about your programme of study is outlined in the Programme Specification which is available on the relevant Courses page of the website. The Programme Specification gives a broad overview of the structure and content of the programme as well as the learning outcomes students will achieve as they progress.

For the Applied Educational Leadership programme you should note the following terminology:

Module: Individual units of the programme are called modules. Each module is a self-contained, formally structured learning experience with a coherent and explicit set of learning outcomes and assessment criteria.

Throughout the Regulations, 'we' 'us' and 'our' mean the University of London; 'you' and 'your' mean the student, or where applicable, all students.

Changes to Regulations 2019-2020

The programme name and associated awards have been changed from 'Applied Educational Leadership and Management' to 'Applied Educational Leadership'.

Upon successful completion, students registered prior to 2019-20 may request the former award name of 'Applied Educational Leadership and Management' by writing to the Assessments team via the ask a question tab in the student portal. Otherwise, the new award name will be granted by default.

The examination to coursework assessment weighting (core and option modules) has been changed from 86:14 to 67:33.

The written examination has changed in format from three questions in three hours to one scenario-based question in two hours 15 minutes.

Regulation 1.5, relating to the procedure for changing a module, has been updated.

Regulation 4.5, referring to when a student is unable to attempt a written examination, has been updated.

Regulations 5.4 and 5.7 have been updated to reflect that a fee is no longer payable for VLE participation for a second time.

The module outline for 'Values, vision and moral purpose [AEM060]' in Appendix B has been updated following module revision.

If you have a query about any of the programme information provided please contact us. You should use the 'ask a question' tab in the student portal <https://my.london.ac.uk>.

4 Assessment for the programme

Assessment methods

4.1

Each module, except the dissertation, is assessed by a two-hour and 15 minute unseen written examination and coursework.

4.2

In order to pass a particular module, you will be required to pass both elements of the assessment for the module concerned and participate in the VLE.

4.3

You are expected to have attempted the coursework for a module before attempting the written examination for that module.

You must contact the Programme team if there are exceptional circumstances affecting your coursework submission, providing supporting documentation where applicable.

4.4

You are normally required to undertake all elements of the assessment for a module or the dissertation and participate in the VLE in the same academic year.

4.5

If you have made an examination entry but are unable to attempt the written examination for that module, you must immediately inform the Assessments team via the ask a question tab in the Student Portal. You must also inform the Programme team, providing your reason for not being able to attempt the written examination.

4.6

If you attempt a single element of assessment for a module, you may be permitted to carry forward the grade awarded for the element attempted. This will be at the discretion of the Board of Examiners.

4.7

The grade awarded for each module will be based on the grade obtained in the written examination and on the grade for the coursework, weighted on the scale 67 (examination):33 (coursework).

Dissertation

4.8

The dissertation module (MA only) is assessed by a written dissertation of 15,000 words (plus or minus 10%), excluding references and appendices.

4.9

For the dissertation, you are required to submit, for approval by the Programme Director, a research proposal, of no more than 500 words by the deadline given in the study materials. The proposal will not form part of the final assessment, but is an essential study requirement. If you do not submit a proposal, you will not be permitted to submit the final dissertation.

4.10

You are strongly advised to submit a draft of your dissertation to your supervisor for feedback before submission of the final version. You should ensure you submit the draft by the deadline for draft submission published in the VLE. The draft dissertation will not form part of the final assessment.

Leading and managing educational change and improvement [AEM010]

This module introduces some of the basic theories relating to leadership and management in educational settings and considers how they might work in a range of situations and national cultures. Students are alerted to the 'Western' nature of leadership and management theory. The individual organisation is looked at from the point of view of its structures, its own institutional culture and the way power is distributed. The implications of the changing division and allocation of power between national and regional government and the individual educational institution are considered. Educational improvement and change along with institutional effectiveness are key themes in this module and they are introduced in this module along with the related concept of evaluation.

Assessment: two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Leadership for the learning community [AEM020]

This module starts by considering the question: what do we mean by learning? It then goes on to consider the implications for leaders and managers if they are to promote effective learning and the role of the wider community in supporting and enabling learning. The role of the staff within a school, college or educational system is key to success, and this module considers two ways in which human resource management links to learning and the implications of this for leaders and managers. The importance of continuing professional development for staff and the support and growth of learning communities is stressed. Finally the module considers the importance of practitioners both using available research evidence and data from outside and from inside the institution and system.

Assessment: two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Finance and resource management [AEM030]

First, this module considers the educational organisation as an open system and the role of financial and resource management within it. Key principles that are considered include those of efficiency and equity, particularly how they can be put into operation. Attention is given to sources of finance both private and public and the way in which finance is administered in decentralised school systems. Theories relating to costs and to funding are covered including the allocation of resources. Budget planning is considered in relation to strategic management and budget preparation including planning using spreadsheets is covered along with financial control and monitoring. The module ends with an assessment of the linkage between finance and educational outcomes – an overview of key issues, methods and research evidence.

Assessment: one two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Developing personal leadership skills [AEM040]

This module develops in more detail the skills and insights arising from the theories and practice presented in the core modules. In particular, this includes development of leadership and management styles in relation to teams, team building and leading teams; running and attending meetings; decision-making in organisations; working with stakeholders; managing conflict and communication styles. Issues of motivation and delegation first introduced in module 2 will be developed further and some of the ideas relating to continuing professional development will be re-visited and explored in more detail. The module investigates the key issues for managers of stress and time management and ends with an examination of action planning.

Assessment: two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Exploring educational policy [AEM050]

This module helps to place the school and college in the context of education policy, considering how policy is made at local, national and international levels. It will consider trends and influences on policy-making and implementation, including: globalisation and national economies, central-local relations, relationships with 'partners', markets, bureaucracies and networks as methods of co-ordinating policy and practice in education systems. Particular attention will be paid to entitlement and access to education, including issues of gender, race, religion and disability and the balance to be struck between basic, vocational and 'elite' academic education and links with economic development and workforce planning. Finally, students will be introduced to conducting a social justice audit.

Assessment: two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Values, vision and moral purpose [AEM060]

This module explores the design and enactment of values, vision and moral purpose in education using three classic strands of ethical theory: rule-based, virtue-based and outcomes-based. It uses real-world examples to evaluate the benefits and disadvantages of these approaches and the tensions between them, and presents practical frameworks designed to enable leaders and their communities to discuss shared values and how to live by them. At each stage it requires students to relate these perspectives to their leadership experiences and actions. In addition, the module explores the case for democratic practice in educational institutions and its connection to the wider demands of global citizenship and environmentalism.

Assessment: two-hour 15 minute unseen written examination (67%) and assignment (33%).

Dissertation [AEM200]

MA degree students only

Not available as an individual module.

Students will be given guidance and further reading on basic research approaches and tools, and will be expected, where possible to conduct a small research project in their own work environment. The project is likely to be based on the investigation of a leadership or management issue leading to recommendations for improvement and action. The investigation could take the form of empirical research or it could be based on desk research making use of already available data. Students will be required to undertake a research methods component which will incorporate dissertation guidance and research methods training. The outcome of the research methods component will be a proposal for the dissertation. The dissertation will receive formative feedback for development of the dissertation project.

Assessment: a dissertation of 15,000 words (plus or minus 10%) excluding references and appendices.
